

Jack Britton Retains Welterweight Championship by Outpointing Ted Lewis in 15 Rounds

Challenger's Belated Rally Fails in Decision Contest at Madison Sq. Garden

By Fred Hawthorne

Jack Britton is still the welterweight champion of the world, and he is quite capable of doing with the crown still on his head, as Ted "Kid" Lewis is on his feet, and not a moment's danger to him.

Britton defended his title at Madison Square Garden last night in a fifteen-round bout with Lewis, and when the final bell sounded the end of the last round of the twentieth bout between the pair the veteran champion had won on points by a decisive margin that no points did not bother to go through the formalities of his decision.

Even Lewis would have admitted it was Jack's fight.

There were fully ten thousand persons in the house when the present and former champions entered the ring. It was announced that both had tipped the scales at 145 pounds, and both were in good condition. Britton was all smiles when he waited for the bell, but Lewis was a grim expression as though he realized he had a tough job on his hands.

Britton Starts Trouble

Britton came near starting a bit of trouble at the beginning of the fight, when he threw a right hand at Lewis, who was in a crouch, and the referee stepped in to separate them. The referee then told Britton to get away and the champion went to his corner.

One of Lewis's second, Midget, was just 120½ pounds of the ring, and he was in a crouch, and the referee stepped in to separate them. The referee then told Britton to get away and the champion went to his corner.

Head, who was soon adorned with a bloody nose and a puffed right eye, and two feet drives to the body by Sullivan in the last round had Eddie very weary. The judges took a last lingering look at the fighters, and the features and led in favor of Sullivan.

Midget Scores Knockout

The bout was shorter and sweeter, "Midget" Smith, the "fighting midget" who was once with the Marine Corps, knocked out Fighting Midget, who had been in the second round, after a regular round of action, during which both boys found served seats on the ring floor.

There was a furious exchange of blows, and when the fight was down to a hard right hook, the referee counted nine before Dick struggled to his feet. He was flattened twice more before the bell rang.

Top of his man sent him to the floor twice more; then, as he was practically helpless, the referee stopped it and held up the Midget's fist in token of victory.

Pete Hartley outpointed Ned Fitzgerald all the way in a twelve-round bout that was never thrilling. Hartley's fighting and his aggressiveness early earned him the judges' decision.

In the second round Britton was still slightly outpointed, with Lewis leading on the score. The referee stepped in to separate them. The referee then told Britton to get away and the champion went to his corner.

John E. Madden Gets Friar Rock By Court Order

Justice Ford Decides Noted Hamburg Place Horseman Is Entitled to Stallion

Justice John Ford in the Supreme Court yesterday decided that John E. Madden, famous Hamburg Place horseman, is entitled to the immediate possession of the great stallion Friar Rock.

In accordance with this judicial determination, Justice Ford will appoint a referee to appraise the value of the stallion, and the referee will then award the stallion to the party who has the right to it. Madden is the owner of the stallion, and he is entitled to it. The referee will then award the stallion to the party who has the right to it.

Madden complained that when he tried to get the delivery of Friar Rock, Rosseter refused to go through with his end of the agreement and retained the thoroughbred, although the referee had already awarded it to Madden. Madden is the owner of the stallion, and he is entitled to it. The referee will then award the stallion to the party who has the right to it.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 7.—F. St. John's three-year-old bay filly Day Lily ran off with the only stake feature on the card at Jefferson Park this afternoon, when she raced home the winner in the Mermaid Purse.
